When they attacked his family, vengeance was born – Peace Breaks Out is a gripping revenge thriller set during the Troubles in Ireland. One for fans of Jack Higgins meets Gerald Seymour.

The IRA plan the assassination of scientist Bill Heathcote, a northern Irish man just returned from development work in the USA. But the assassination is botched and Bill's wife and young daughter are murdered in a car bomb meant for him.

Overcome with remorse, one of the bombers, Danny, decides to help Bill track down his former comrades to exact revenge, though the situation is complicated by ruthless political powers determined to use the situation for their own ends. When the right choice can literally mean the death of innocence, how will you decide?

- Classic revenge thriller with an intelligent political espionage backstory and page-turning plot and international coverage
- Film already in production (Eddie Redmayne reading for the main role!)
- Robin Hardy is a film director and producer (he is most well-known for The Wicker Man)
- Nationwide articles and interviews planned and first set of book trailers will appear on You Tube in the autumn

The late Robin Hardy was an English author and film director. His most famous directorial work was The Wicker Man, and his most recent project was a film adaptation of his novel Cowboys for Christ, which has been retitled as The Wicker Tree. Donough enjoyed a successful marketing career in the US and Europe. His previous books include Fame by Chance; Banana Skins; Numeroids; and In the Heat of Battle; a study of those who rose to the occasion in warfare and those who didn't. His latest historical book was WHO? The most remarkable people you've never heard of. His crime thriller Serial Damage was published by Urbane in Oct 2016.
